

Online Consultations

for eCampus and Regional Campus Students

eCampus and regional campus students can receive objective, peer-to-peer feedback on a variety of communication projects including the following:

- Writing projects
- Multimodal projects
- Individual and group presentations
- Visual aids and slideshows
- Posters
- Cover letters
- Presentation slides

Similar to face-to-face consultations, those taking place online will help students

- think critically and creatively about their communication projects
- consider the project's effectiveness for a particular audience, purpose, and context
- serve as a supportive and safe venue for students to share ideas, questions, and concerns with their communication projects

How to get the most out of your online consultation

- Come prepared with questions and ideas that you would like the consultant to address during the online consultation.
- Online consultations take place using audio and video. Therefore, you will need a webcam, headset, and microphone. Please make plans to access the necessary technology in advance of your consultation. Regional campus sites can provide this technology if you need it.

Students must schedule online consultations at least two days in advance by calling 859-622-7330. Please visit www.studio.eku.edu for details about scheduling online consultations.
